The Channel was cut through the Spine of Creation when the Draakhorn and Grovelthrash simultaneously exploded, suddenly opening the western border of the Broken Kingdoms to the wider world. Kazan, already nearby with its army, immediately recognized the significance of the Channel and spent years building a massive wall that blocks the Channel from end to end.

The “only” entrance is through the Channel Gate, where Kazan manages access and charges onerous taxes. It hosts a large barracks of soldiers, and a makeshift town has sprung up around it. Channel Gate is administered by Gatelord Korga Lukresk, a member of the Iron Council and a hero of Kazan’s battle against the Faceless Wyrms years ago.
